Heye has been one of my favorite puzzle brands for many years and I'm a long-time collector of their cartoon puzzles in triangular boxes. They hold up very well under our formal brand comparison criteria. The pieces are as thick as Ravensbuger, grid-cut, but with a wide variety of shapes so that there's never confusion about where a piece goes. Their triangular boxes are outstanding and include a large poster with a mini-catalog on the back. Their catalog includes a variety of great images, many of which are specially commissioned. They are still best of breed in cartoon puzzles but offer a wide variety of image types now. The only cons are a somewhat looser tight than some other brands and a little puzzle dust.
